

Winter Sun

It is quiet now I've hardly seen you through your veil
where are you going
will you not stay
share some memories
of summer days youthful fancies
endless dreams
sure as a July day
What is it you say
broken promises
You've gone away
hidden sorrows
lie sleeping in a garden Yellow eyes
try to remember Spring in the amber light casts a shadow long and lean a faint voice on the wind asks a question
Who still remains?
It is Winter
and it is time to sleep
no familiar face
Winter sun
where have you gone
with my soul and comfort Can you not linger long?
What will I do alone?
Down below the treetops through the naked limbs will you come no closer?
Do you pretend
not to know who I am?
Why now do you ignore
and offer no advice
left here alone
to my own device
Who do you take with you
Winter Sun
with your lifeless sight fading eyes
long forgotten good byes of those forever summer days left us so long ago
so young, and alive
but who is here anymore with us and these bare trees that held so many dreams where have they gone
Winter Sun
